

Conceptualizing Resistance

Author(s): Jocelyn A. Hollander [1], Rachel L. Einwohner [2]

In: Sociological Forum, Vol 19, No 4, 2004, pp. 533-554

Discusses possible confusion in meaning of 'resistance' in recent sociological studies and suggests a typology of intended and unintended 'resistance'. Many references to gender-based resistance, and forms of indirect resistance by slaves, peasants, workers and the unemployed, as well as the direct resistance of the US Civil Rights Movement.

Source URL (modified on 23/08/2016 -

15:57):<https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2004/conceptualizing-resistance>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/112> [2] <https://civilresistance.info/author/113>