

How South Africa Forced Gandhi to Reckon with Racism and Imperialism

Author: Mary King [1]

In: Waging Nonviolence, 2019

At a time when Gandhi is being widely criticized (for very different reasons) in India, South Africa and the UK, Mary King sets Gandhi in his historical context and also stresses Gandhi's own willingness to confront his assumptions and prejudices.

See

also <https://jameslawsoninstitute.org/2019/10/07/can-we-celebrate-gandhis-achievements-while-also-learning-from-his-errors/> [2]

Available online at:

<https://wagingnonviolence.org/2019/10/south-africa-forced-gandhi-reckon-with-racism-imperialism/> [3]

Source URL (modified on 04/06/2020 - 16:55): <http://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2019/how-south-africa-forced-gandhi-reckon-racism-and-imperialism>

Links

[1] <http://civilresistance.info/author/3006>

[2] <https://jameslawsoninstitute.org/2019/10/07/can-we-celebrate-gandhis-achievements-while-also-learning-from-his-errors/>

[3] <https://wagingnonviolence.org/2019/10/south-africa-forced-gandhi-reckon-with-racism-imperialism/>