Mandle, W. F., Going It Alone: Australia's National Identity in the Twentieth Century [2], Ringwood VIC, Penguin, 1980

Chapter on 'Donald Macleod and Australia's Aboriginal Problem', pp. 174-89 covers Pilbara strike and Pindan movement of late 1940s.

Neubauer, Ian, Catching the Cops [3], New Internationalist, 2019

Reports on a new app, created by the Sydney-based National Justice Project, that enables Aboriginal people to record police discrimination and violence against them. It is being adopted across Australia. The author sets this Australian initiative in the context of disproportionate jailing of Aborigines and frequent police discrimination, as well as the wider global movement to use film to highlight police injustice, with examples from the USA and Canada.

Read, Peter, Charles Perkins: A Biography [4], Melbourne VIC, Penguin, 2001, pp. 392

Perkins has been one of the leading activists in New South Wales and his role in leading protests is described in some detail.
