Sutton, Barbara ; Borland, Elizabeth, Abortion and Human Rights for Women in Argentina [1], Frontiers: A Journal of Women Studies, Vol. 40, no. 2, 2019, pp. 27-61

Explores the criminalization of abortion in Argentina and its implications for the lives of women, such as maternal mortality and clandestine practice. The article also covers the struggle of feminist activists to include reproductive rights within the framework of human rights.

Year of Publication: 2018

Sutton, Barbara, Surviving State Terror. Women's Testimonies of Repression and Resistance in Argentina [2], New York, New York University Press, 2018, pp. 328

Barbara Sutton collects stories of women in Argentina who have been tortured in clandestine detention. Her work centres on three main questions: how did gender hierarchies, ideologies and identities play out in the infliction of bodily oppression; in the disavowal of the tortured body; and in embodied strategies of survival and resistance. She also asks how can we account for the gendered tortured body and how do we tell stories about it.
