

Filter by language

You can filter the displayed publications by language

Year of Publication: 2014

Yuhua, Wang, Coercive Capacity and the Durability of the Chinese Communist State [1], Communist and Post-Communist Studies, Vol. 47, no. 1, 2014, pp. 13-25

The author examines why the Chinese Communist regime has been able to retain control despite the period of rapid economic change and growth that have often elsewhere promoted strong pressure for democratization. The article suggests that one major reason is that the CCP 'has successfully strengthened the state's 'coercive capacity', in particular increased funding for the police. This article primarily covers the period before Xi decided to increase repression, but illuminates the context for his policy.

Source URL (retrieved on 02/05/2024 - 04:41):<https://civilresistance.info/author/3003>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2014/coercive-capacity-and-durability-chinese-communist-state>