

Crises of the Republic

Author: Hannah Arendt [1]

Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, New York, 1972

The essay 'Civil Disobedience' discusses consent and the right to dissent in the context of the US Civil Rights Movement and Vietnam anti-war protests. It distinguishes between disobedience motivated by citizenship responsibility and that motivated primarily by individual conscience. The essay 'On Violence', examines the nature of power and violence (with examples from contemporary movements and politics), and argues that power (as she defines it) is not only distinct from violence but its opposite.

Source URL (modified on 23/08/2016 - 15:57): <https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/1972/crises-republic>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/51>