

Northern Ireland: The Orange State

Author: Michael Farrell [1]

Pluto Press, London, 1980, pp. 406

Originally published: 1976

A history of Northern Ireland, and socialist political analysis of the causes of the conflict there, by a leading civil rights campaigner and founding member of People's Democracy. He concludes that the choice in Ireland is 'between, on the one hand, a semi-fascist Orange statelet in the North, matched by a pro-imperialist police state in the South, and, on the other hand, an anti-imperialist and socialist revolution'.

Source URL (modified on 18/01/2017 - 14:22): <https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/1980/northern-ireland-orange-state>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/2136>