

Defence and Dissent in Contemporary France

Editor(s): Jolyon Howorth [1], Patricia Chilton [2]

Croom Helm, London, 1984, pp. 264

Part 1 covers France's defence policy since 1945 – including the wars in Indo-China and Algeria, and De Gaulle's decision (supported by the major political parties) to develop a French nuclear bomb. Part 2 focuses on anti-nuclear critiques and movements in the 1980s, including a military critique of French defence policy by Admiral Sanguinetti and Claude Bourdet on the 'The rebirth of the peace movement'.

Source URL (modified on 29/11/2016 -

15:31):<https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/1984/defence-and-dissent-contemporary-france>

Links

[\[1\] https://civilresistance.info/author/1642](https://civilresistance.info/author/1642) [\[2\] https://civilresistance.info/author/1643](https://civilresistance.info/author/1643)