

In Defence of Radical Direct Action: Reflections on Civil Disobedience, Sabotage and Nonviolence

Author: Lindsay Hart [1]

In: Parkis, Jan ; Bowen, James , Twenty-First Century Anarchism: Unorthodox Ideas for a New Millennium [2]
London, Cassell, , 1997, pp. 41-59

Defends new forms of radical direct action, including 'ecotage', arguing that violence should be measured by harm inflicted, not use of physical force.

Source URL (modified on 07/11/2016 - 14:36): <https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/1997/defence-radical-direct-action-reflections-civil-disobedience-sabotage-and>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/1529>

[2] <https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/1997/twenty-first-century-anarchism-unorthodox-ideas-new-millennium>