

Unarmed Forces: The Transnational Movement to End the Cold War

Author: Matthew Evangelista [1]

Columbia University Press, Ithaca NY, 1999, pp. 406

Well-documented examination of the role of transnational civil movements in contributing to arms control and the ending of the Cold War. Includes assessment of the Pugwash Conference which brought together scientists from East and West, and also the wider anti-war movement.

Source URL (modified on 23/11/2016 - 15:21): <https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/1999/unarmed-forces-transnational-movement-end-cold-war>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/1702>