

---

Northern Ireland 1921-2001

Updated edition of "1921-1994: Political Forces and Social Classes"

Author(s): Paul Bew [1], Peter Gibbon [2], Henry Patterson [3]

Serif, London, 2002, pp. 274

Originally published: 1995

An extended historical interpretation from a Marxist perspective, which makes use of the large volume of archive material released in the 1970s. Focuses on the interaction of class and other economic and political factors in the conflict in Northern Ireland. Maintains that the divisions in the country made some form of partition inevitable, the issue at stake being what form it would take.

---

Source URL (modified on 18/01/2017 -

14:10):<https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2002/northern-ireland-1921-2001>

Links

[\[1\] https://civilresistance.info/author/2130](https://civilresistance.info/author/2130) [\[2\] https://civilresistance.info/author/2131](https://civilresistance.info/author/2131) [\[3\] https://civilresistance.info/author/2132](https://civilresistance.info/author/2132)