

Stop the Next War Now: Effective Responses to Violence and Terror

Author(s): Jodie Evans [1], Medea Benjamin [2]

New World Library, Novat CA, 2005, pp. 256

The editors were among the women who launched the campaign Code Pink: Women for Peace in November 2002, which has since undertaken a wide range of nonviolent direct action protests in the United States and forged links with women in many other countries. (For details see: <http://www.codepink.org> [3]). The book is a collection of essays by peace activists and scholars exploring a range of issues but including an emphasis on dissent and movement building.

Source URL (modified on 09/12/2016 - 11:48):<https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2005/stop-next-war-now-effective-responses-violence-and-terror>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/1940> [2] <https://civilresistance.info/author/1941> [3] <http://www.codepink.org/splash?splash=1>