

The Unconquerable World: Power, Nonviolence and the Will of the People

Author: Jonathan Schell [1]

Allen Lane/Penguin Press, London, 2005, pp. 435

An argument by US intellectual on historical trends promoting nonviolence as a potential alternative to war. Part 2. 'Nonviolence', pp. 103-231, focuses in particular on Gandhi and dissent in Central Eastern Europe in the 1970s and 1980s.

Source URL (modified on 14/02/2017 - 14:42): <https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2005/unconquerable-world-power-nonviolence-and-will-people>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/45>