

A first look at a 21st century disarmament movement

Author: John Baker [1]

In: Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, 2016

Critically assesses the qualities that a nuclear disarmament movement needs to develop in the current era. By comparing Black Lives Matter, ICAN and the Nuclear Freeze movement of the 1980s, Baker explains why a new anti-nuclear weapons movement should be intersectional, digital and confrontational.

Available online at:

<https://thebulletin.org/2016/12/a-first-look-at-a-21st-century-disarmament-movement/> [2]

Source URL (modified on 21/07/2020 - 14:10):<https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2016/first-look-21st-century-disarmament-movement>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/3228> [2] <https://thebulletin.org/2016/12/a-first-look-at-a-21st-century-disarmament-movement/>