

The Nuclear Freeze Generation: The Early 1980s Anti-nuclear Movement between 'Carter's Vietnam' and 'Euroshima'

Author: Dario Fazzi [1]

In: in Andresen, Knud and Bart van der Steen (eds) A European Youth Revolt. European Perspectives on Youth Protest and Social Movements in the 1980s, pp. 145-158

In the early 1980s, there were mass protests across the Western world with varied goals, for example to support different models of economic development, promote anti-militarism and non-violence, or redefine urban and social spaces. Many, however, saw safeguarding the environment as their primary goal and identified nuclear energy as their main target. The authors investigate the movement for as afer environment and how it mobilized large sections of society and provided people with new tools of civic expression.

Source URL (modified on 09/06/2020 - 15:45): <https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2016/nuclear-freeze-generation-early-1980s-anti-nuclear-movement-between-carters-vietnam>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/3043>