

Government responses to feminicides in Latin America

Author: Irma Klipic [1]

Linnæus University, Växjö & Kalmar, Småland (Sweden), 2018

This thesis examines how government responses affected femicide rates in five selected countries: Costa Rica, Chile, Argentina, Brazil, and Mexico. The study is a qualitative comparative multi-case study using social inclusion and exclusion theory to understand if policies are inclusive or exclusive, and if the nature of legislation has an impact on the femicide rates.

Source URL (modified on 17/12/2019 - 17:36): <https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2018/government-responses-feminicides-latin-america>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/2488>