

This is what Indigenous Resistance to Fracking looks like in Pennsylvania

Author: Kristina Marusic [1]

In: Environmental Health News, 2018

Reports on water ceremony in Pittsburgh, conducted by two indigenous tribal faith leaders, followed by march and rally by local and national environmental groups to protest against the development of fracking in Southwestern Pennsylvania. The protests were timed to coincide with a large fracking convention in the city.

Available online at:

ehn.org/this-is-what-indigenous-resistance-to-fracking-looks-like-in-pennsylvania-2614910769.html [2]

Source URL (modified on 21/07/2020 - 11:38): <https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2018/what-indigenous-resistance-fracking-looks-pennsylvania>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/3217>

[2] <https://civilresistance.info/ehn.org/this-is-what-indigenous-resistance-to-fracking-looks-like-in-pennsylvania-2614910769.html>