

---

Why youth and feminist activism matters: insights from anti-nuclear campaigns in practice

Author: Lisa Carson [1]

In: Global Change, Peace & Security, Vol 30, No 2, 2018, pp. 261-269

By drawing on the perspective of young activists, it provides insights about the importance of feminist analysis and the vote of young people in building an anti-nuclear movement. It also proposes various strategies for engaging the young.

See also Fernando, Kris and Graham Vaughan (1992) 'Young New Zealanders' knowledge and concern about nuclear war' in Interdisciplinary Peace Research, Vol. 4, issue 2, pp. 31-57. DOI: 10.1080/14781159208412752 [2]

---

Source URL (modified on 12/06/2020 - 17:14):<https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2018/why-youth-and-feminist-activism-matters-insights-anti-nuclear-campaigns-practice>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/3090> [2] <https://doi.org/10.1080/14781159208412752>