

---

What is Blackwom?nhood: An intersectional dialogue with the Young Wom?n's Leadership Project

Author(s): Jan-Louise Lewin [1], Kamohelo Mabogwane [2], Ariana Smit [3], Andréa Alexander [4], Amanda Mokoena [5], Chido Nyaruwata [6]

In: Agenda, Vol 33, No 2, 2019, pp. 61-69

The authors draw on their own experiences and intersectional identities to consider: What is Blackwom?nhood? They explore a variety of topics, such as identity, feminist activism, the environment, and decoloniality and focus on the intersections of race, class, gender, sexuality, location, and language. This article is designed to provoke ideas about the representation and self-expression of Black women and their implication for critical feminist theorising of Black women's role in activism, academia, and the workplace.

---

Source URL (modified on 12/05/2020 - 19:00):<https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2019/what-blackwomnhood-intersectional-dialogue-young-womns-leadership-project>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/2783> [2] <https://civilresistance.info/author/2784> [3] <https://civilresistance.info/author/2785> [4] <https://civilresistance.info/author/2786> [5] <https://civilresistance.info/author/2787> [6] <https://civilresistance.info/author/2788>