

The Pipeline Battle and Canada's Climate Doublespeak

Author: Tracey Lindemann [1]

In: Guardian Weekly, 2020, pp. 33ff

Reports on wave of rail blockades across Canada in February/March 2020 in solidarity with the Wet-suwet-en indigenous nation in British Columbia, who had been obstructing work on the 670 kilometre Coastal Gaslink project. A military style police raid in British Columbia sparked solidarity from Mohawks in Ontario and Quebec, and other indigenous and non-indigenous people. Greenpeace gave their support. There were also street marches in towns and cities.

See also: Rizvi, Husna, 'Wet"suwet'en Gas Pipeline Battle', New Internationalist, May-June 2020, p. 10.

Source URL (modified on 20/07/2020 - 18:48): <https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2020/pipeline-battle-and-canadas-climate-doublespeak>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/3213>