

OPINION: We can't tackle climate change without indigenous people

Author: Rachel McMonagle [1]

In: Thomson Reuters Foundation, 2021

Following President Joe Biden's initiative to recommit to the Paris Agreement on climate change and the signing of an executive order halting the construction of the Keystone XL pipeline project, this article emphasises the role of indigenous people within the climate justice movement.

See also: Ambroiggio, Mia, 'Why We Need to Center Indigenous Voices in Climate Conversations', Loyola Phoenix, 3 February 2021.

<http://loyolaphoenix.com/2021/02/why-we-need-to-center-indigenous-voices-in-climate-conversations/> [2]

Available online at:

<https://news.trust.org/item/20210204145518-ipj2w> [3]

Source URL (modified on 13/12/2021 -

16:41):<https://civilresistance.info/biblio-item/2021/opinion-we-cant-tackle-climate-change-without-indigenous-people>

Links

[1] <https://civilresistance.info/author/3584> [2] <http://loyolaphoenix.com/2021/02/why-we-need-to-center-indigenous-voices-in-climate-conversations/> [3] <https://news.trust.org/item/20210204145518-ipj2w>